

Setting Your Boundaries and Communicating Your Needs at Work

COMMUNICATION

What are your expectations around communication outside of work?	(Example: To maintain a healthy work/life balance, I do not check my work emails outside of work hours)
Are you comfortable sharing your cell phone number? If yes, what are your boundaries around use of your cell phone number?
What is your preferred method of communication inside and outside of work?
How often do you prefer to meet with your supervisor?

PROJECTS AND PRODUCTIVITY

What do you need to ensure that you meet deadlines and correctly prioritize tasks?	(Example: When given a task, I need a specific deadline to help me manage my workload. If this is a big project, I need specific checkpoints throughout the process before the final project is due)
How do you communicate if you have too much on your plate or not enough to do?
What does your ideal working space look like when you are most productive?
What are the things that distract you the most easily when you are trying to get things done? What do you need or what can you do to avoid this distraction?

WORK/LIFE BALANCE

Are you comfortable sharing details about your personal life at work?	(Example: I don't mind sharing information about what I'm up to, likes/dislikes, information about my partner and pets, but I don't feel comfortable engaging in conversation about politics or my personal beliefs)
For anything that you don't feel comfortable sharing, how can you establish a boundary around this at work?
What does work/life balance mean to you?
How do you ensure that you are able to eat lunch while at work? Do you work through lunches, schedule dedicated time?
When creating a schedule (outlook, google calendar, etc), what kind of events/projects/commitments are you comfortable sharing?

FEEDBACK

How do you like to receive recognition or praise?	(Example: I prefer to be recognized privately. It makes me uncomfortable to have attention brought to me in a public setting)
How do you like to receive feedback on your work? Are there certain methods or ways that you prefer constructive feedback?	